DUMB FRIENDS LEAGUE OFFERS SPECIAL ADOPTION FEE OF $25 FOR ADULT CATS

Nearly 200 adult cats in need of homes

DENVER (September 23, 2009) – The Dumb Friends League is hoping to find homes for hundreds of homeless cats by offering a special adoption fee of $25 for adult cats (one year or older) through the end of October.

Between both shelters, the Dumb Friends League currently has nearly 200 adult cats available for adoption. "If people are thinking of adopting a cat, now is the time," says Bob Rohde, Dumb Friends League president. "We also hope that people might consider adopting two cats for the $25 adoption fee. Many cats do better in pairs, as they are highly sociable and enjoy each other's company."

People who aren't prepared to adopt but would still like to help might consider being a foster care parent. Foster homes are needed for healthy adult cats, cats recovering from minor illnesses and kittens too young for adoption. Interested volunteers may call (303) 751-5772, Ext. 7627, or visit www.ddfl.org for more information.
